GOVERNOR STONE'S MENDACITY.

THE GIBSON IMPOSTURE APPROVED BY THE DEMOCRATIC PRESS AND PARTY—PERSONAL WHIPPING—THE REIGN OF TERROR.

[Special Dispatch to the New York Times.]

WASHINGTON, June 3.—In the face of the fact that the Democratic newspapers of Mississippi and the other Gulf States defend the massacre of the Chisolm negroes, and boldly defy any official investigation of the crime, Gov. Stone has written a letter to a friend in this city, extracts from which were recently published, in which he says, "No one justifies the act by which Judge Chisolm lost his life." Gov. Stone must know that there is no truth in that sentence. The unanimous voice of the Democratic press, per press of the State, as well as the expression of individuals whom he daily meets, furnishes the most positive evidence that he could have made the sentence above quoted read, "Every one justifies the acts by which Judge Chisolm lost his life." Not only do the people of Mississippi whom Gov. Stone represents, and whose suffrage he is now soliciting for re-election, justify the murder of Judge Chisolm and his family, but they are today perpetrating the most audacious and barbarous outrages upon Republicans of Mississippi, and Gov. Stone encourages but knows it. All testimony from Mississippi goes to show that there is a large majority in that State as terrible as that which inflicted France under Napoleon III., and in its disposition the Mississippi of to-day is sanguinary and as savage as its great prototype. There is not in Mississippi a Republican, white or black, who dares to publish a sentence his sentiments (with reference to affairs. In that State, nor do they feel safe in using the Post Office to write to friends at a distance. The correspondence of the terrible conditions that surround them. Every letter that comes from Mississippi in which statements are made about the existing state of affairs, concludes with an earnest exhortation that the letters may be guarded so the writers cannot be discovered by their relations. It is impossible that such a condition of affairs could exist in Mississippi and Gov. Stone remain ignorant of it, and it is equally impossible that in communities where such lawlessness prevails no one can be found who justifies the act by which Judge Chisolm lost his life.

Mississippi persecutions and lawlessness did not cease with the massacre of the Chisolm family. Quite a number of the most prominent Republicans in Kemper County, there are eleven gentlemen of the old plantation and aristocratic type in other parts of Mississippi who, emboldened by recent acts of "reconciliation" have gone back two decades and resumed the overseer's lash and the intolerant arrogance and tyrannical dominion that left Gulf Southern rule before the legal shackles which divided America in slaves and freemen was broken down. Since the Kemper massacre many letters have been received from Mississippi at the Washington bureau of the Times recounting some of the petty outrages daily practiced in that State. All these letters are written in that dread of terrible consequences to follow should the writers be discovered. Some of them are so cautiously written that it is impossible to tell from the letters of persons and places, and all of them close with a prayer to preserve the writers from the possibility of recognition. A gentleman who has just arrived here from Mississippi relates some acts of lawlessness of which he was cognizant, and which, he says, are examples of similar crimes daily perpetrated in various parts of the State.

This gentleman says that while he was in Fayette Jefferson County, three colored people were unmercifully whipped. One of these was an employee of Judge Hicks, who, under the Judge's instructions killed a cow that had broken into his field and done considerable damage. That night a band of armed men dragged the colored man from his cabin and gave him 100 lashes on the bare back. Judge Hicks was, of course, indignant, and threatened to prosecute the case to the Grand Jury. Capt. Thompson, one of the party engaged in whipping the colored man, called on Judge Hicks, and warned him that if he undertook to prosecute the case he would be served in the same manner.

Another case of whipping was on Dr. Miles' place. An old colored man who lived on the place objected to a young married colored man visiting his daughter. Some difficulty grew out of the matter and a magistrate was appealed to, but he refused to act. That night a club went to the old man's house took him out and whipped him, from the effects of which he has not yet fully recovered.

A third case occurred on the place of W. W. Maddox, under the following circumstances. A white man who formerly kept a colored woman, and had children by her, being about to get married, sent the colored woman and her children away. Some time after his marriage and during his absence from home, the colored woman, feeling neglected and aggrieved by his conduct, came back and informed Mrs. Maddox of about the case, insisting on her right to remain. That night she was taken out by a party of white men and terribly whipped. These cases of whipping were notoriously known in the country. The Grand Jury was in session at the time, yet no indictments were found for such outrages, nor were the three cases described ever presented to the Grand Jury.

In speaking of these things this gentleman says: "It is astonishing that in white money can be so completely at the bidding of desperate and lawless men. It need not be, and would not be, were it not for the fact that the mob encouraged in this lawlessness is the sympathy of the people. Even the most conservative Democrats seem to have little respect for the law, or are afraid to raise their voices in opposition to lawlessness, and therein lies the hopelessness of the case."

The letter received at the Times Bureau from another point in Mississippi relates to the whipping of Dr. Thomas W. Stringer, an educated colored man, about 50 years of age. Dr. Stringer is a minister of the African Colored Church, and is located at Grenada. He has been in Mississippi for several years, having been originally recognized as a conservative man, and was in 1873 a candidate on the Democratic State ticket for State Treasurer. He protested in public against the oppression and wrong of which he was daily witness. This gave offense to the Democrats, and he was accordingly whipped.

A gentleman also well known in his section of Mississippi that it would be unsafe to name the point from which he writes, in a letter directing the Times to send him regularly says: "We get the news, (old enough when it reaches us,) but news of a political character comes to us filtered through the muddy brain of the Southern Press Association, and you know the difficulty of gathering the truth from such a mountain of falsehood. Hence conceive my desire for something from the fountain head, and from a source entitled to respect." This writer gives some information with reference to the feeling among Southern Republicans touching the President's Southern policy. Upon this subject he says, "Are we sold out, turned over, conveyed, body, heels, and breeches, to the Democracy? It looks that way to many earliest Republicans who have risked her and everything dear to be Republicans. For my own part, I confess that I am at sea. I am asked a dozen times each day to explain our situation. The unlettered but faithful people who form the bulk of the Republican Party in Mississippi, and the South cannot understand the "public policy" and joyous contentment manifested by their old enemy—the hell-loving Democracy—over President Hayes' Southern policy. They cannot understand how it happens that the success of the cause for a while so dear to them, and which they have repeatedly declared to disenfranchising the Republican Party of the South, and in concentrating all political power, State and national, in the hands of their persecutors. They cannot see what good is to come from this, and with our imperfect knowledge of the President's policy, we cannot give them any light. The prized anomaly of the 'policy,' they say, is without explanation, with us, and wide-spread discontent and demoralization is the result. The inauguration of the 'policy' may be the cause of political division and the concentration of pure patriotism in one broad statesmanship; but until the mystery is cleared up it must stand as a pretty stout allegation of fraud against the party in the South, which supported and elected Mr. Hayes. Our leading true-hearted old friend Judge Chisolm of Kemper, has paid the penalty of Southern Republican leadership. Many thoughtful men see in the Chisolm massacre, and the butchery of unpeeled parties, the cream of all Southern men who have had the courage to be Republicans in the past. Any policy is cruel that incites the Spartan band of Southern Republicans over to the tender mercies of their enemy. With my habit of plain speaking, I know not where my intimacy may come to follow Chisolm."

The writer above quoted incloses some extracts received from a Republican in another part of Mississippi, for the purpose of showing the general feeling among the Republicans at the South with reference to the President's policy. This writer, like the one above quoted, is a native of Mississippi. He says: "All my political friends and old colleagues have been knocked into topped smithereens. I don't know anything about Hayes, though I am nominally following him. Whether he is the old 'caps' a Tyler or a Johnson, or a genuine leaner of men, with the ability to lower down and build up parties, I know not, and never do. He may be, for he is Chesterfield, but I see in the waste of water now, and I cling to it as a drowning man. I feel that I am on the rugged edge of something, and don't exactly know what it is. I feel strange symptoms in the air of me, a sort of moving and rumbling in the bowels of my politics, as if I were breeding a young tornado or revolution. I don't know what may happen. Something in my epigastrium. I floating along with Hayes without knowing where he is going to or what he is going to do when he gets there. I am not a splendid pendulum to be tied to all for a yellow dog."

The writer then speaks of the commenting on the above extracts of the letter from us, and says: "I have you see how completely the President's policy has set the cracking men of the old party about, without compass or the encouraging ray of a political light-house, and it don't seem to be of any use to ring the alarm bell or blow the fog whistle. Forty-five human Republicans in this county alone cannot muster as got one of their number appointed to a 20-cent office."

THE CHARLIE ROSS CASE.—The Philadelphia Times of Tuesday prints the following in relation to the renewed efforts to recover Charlie Ross: "One person whose intelligent understanding of the case long since been proved, has worked unceasingly that all the daily hard-thinking men of the old party about, without compass or the encouraging ray of a political light-house, and it don't seem to be of any use to ring the alarm bell or blow the fog whistle. Forty-five human Republicans in this county alone cannot muster as got one of their number appointed to a 20-cent office."

WRITING FOR THE PRESS.—Amateur writers for the press will find these hints from the Burlington Hawkeye simply invaluable:

"Never write with pen or ink. It is altogether too plain, and doesn't hold the mind at the editor and printers closely enough to their work.

"If you are compelled to use ink, never use that vulgarity known as the blotting pad. If you drop a blot of ink on the paper flick it off. The intelligent compositor loves nothing so dearly as to read through the smear that will make across twenty or thirty words. We have seen him hanging over such a piece of copy half an hour, swearing like a pirate all the time he felt that good.

"Don't try to write too plainly. It is a sign of plebeian origin and public school breeding. Poor writing is an indication of genius. It's about the only indication of genius that a great many men possess. Sprawl your articles with your eyes shut and make every word as illegible as you can. We got the same price for it from the rag man as though it were covered with copper-plate sentences.

"Avoid all painstaking with proper names. We know the full name of every man, woman and child in the United States and the merest hint of the name is sufficient. It is a great mistake that proper names should be written plainly.

"Always write on both sides of the paper and when you have filled both sides of every page trail a line up and down every margin and back to the top of the first page closing your article by writing the signature just above the date. How we do love to get hold of articles written in this style! And how we would like to get hold of the man who sends them. Just for ten minutes. Alone. In the woods, with a rail in our hip pocket."

A young man who thinks he can lead a reckless and profligate life until he becomes a middle-aged man, and then repent, and make a good and steady citizen, is deluded by the devil. He thinks that people are fools, destitute of memory. He considers that if he repents everybody will forget that he was a dissipated wretch. This is not the case; people remember your bad deeds and forget your good ones. Besides, it is no easy thing to break up in middle-age bad habits that have been formed in youth. When a man contracts the habit of balking he generally retains it through life. He will often perform well enough until the wheels get into a deep hole, and then he stops and holds back. Just so it is with the boys who contract bad habit. They will sometimes leave off their bad tricks, and do well enough until they get into a tight place, and then return to the old habit. Of those boys who contract the bad habit of drunkenness, not one in every hundred dies a sober man. The best way to break up a bad habit is never to contract it. The only way to prevent drunkenness is never to drink.

THURSDAY, JUNE 7, 1877.

In the chamber of the Turkish Parliament, there are Mohammedans, Greek Unitarians, Bulgarian Sectarians, Roman Catholics, Armenian Unitarians, Chaldean and Syriac Sectarians, Jews, Protestants, Maronites and Druses. Among the deputies three days per week are sacrificed as Sabbaths—Friday by the Mohammedans, Saturday by the Jews and Sunday by the others.

The arrest of the President of the Municipal Council of Paris is another of the arbitrary acts committed in the name of social order by the adventurers who have obtained control of the French Government. It is creditable to the Republicans that, under all this provocation, they maintain a calm and dignified attitude. All France will soon discern who are the real disturbers of the public peace.

The Chicago Tribune finds consolation for its wounds at the hands of Gail Hamilton in witnessing the writhing of the Boston papers under their punishment. They made merry when the Chicago paper was the sufferer and now the Tribune retorts upon them as follows: "Now that Gail Hamilton has jabbed her little penknife into the Herald and the Advertiser of Boston, those papers don't think she is a very humorous creature, and they don't laugh over her cavortings."—Hartford Journal.

The last Indian mail to England brings news that, as a consequence of the failure of negotiations between the Indian Government and the Ameer of Afghanistan, England will no longer supply the latter with arms as heretofore. The British troops on the frontier now number 12,000 and are equipped for immediate action. It is stated that a Turkish envoy has been urging the Ameer to join issues with Russia, but it is thought that he will first attempt to satisfy his grudge against England and make mischief on the frontier.

The unhappiness among Indiana Democrats about Gov. Williams is increasing. He who was formerly fondly termed "Uncle Jimmy Blue Jeans" is now dignatized as a traitor to his party, and a misguided old man. He is said to "have turned upon his own people, to have "given up his pretensions of economy and reform," to have "become part and parcel of a corrupt movement" and to have "gone back upon the history of his whole past life", And has he shed the beloved blue jeans, too? Those were all the "history" the country ever heard anything about.

M. Le Verrier, the distinguished astronomer, is stated, on the authority of Nature, to be so seriously prostrated by overwork that his condition causes much anxiety to his friends. This interruption of his laborious mathematical researches is the first in a period of twenty years. His wonderfully verified prediction of the existence and place of the telescopic planet Neptune was made in 1846. Since then he has been chiefly occupied with profound studies of perturbations in the orbits of the planets, and has made, from four or five distinct sources, several separate calculations of the distance of the sun.

Mr. Bloomer of San Francisco aspired to be a Democratic member of the Legislature, but at the caucus he was charged with wearing linen for which he paid $1.50 a dozen for washing, and gave the work to the Chinese. Mr. Bloomer having "publicly boasted" of this practice, he could not deny the charges and was voted down and accused of "inconsistency" in a card in the newspapers. The fact that he wore immaculate shirt fronts made him an object of suspicion, but when Mr. B. submitted his under garments to the manipulation of a Pagan, who neither drinks whiskey nor stuffs ballot boxes, he ceased to have any claim on the support of the Democratic ward manager in San Francisco.

"Since I shook hands with Gen. Lee at Appomattox I have been willing to forgive. But I will only forgive when the principles for which they (our soldiers) fell are established. I don't think it best to be too hasty about it. I don't believe in legislating forgiveness. I don't believe in talking forgiveness. I don't believe in talking so much about it. I don't belong to any party. I am not a Republican. I am not a Democrat. But I think it is too much talked about. It must be allowed to take its own course, as other matters do. It will take time. But I don't believe it is well to do too much talking about it."—General Sherman.

Europe is now taking a surprising quantity of American fruit. The purchases have amounted to over $2,500,000 worth since last June, instead of $600,000 in the same period the year before. Dried apples figure largely in this movement. This country has exported over 12,000,000 pounds of them since last June, instead of 522,000 pounds the previous year. This new addition to the trade of the United States is due to invention, which has occupied itself of late with improved methods for drying and preserving for transporting fruit. The greatest progress has been made in the way of dryers. Within a year some notable inventions in this line have been perfected, which are a great acquisition to the resources of the country. The fruit-dryer bids fair hereafter to be as much of a necessity to every farming community as the cider-mill and the cheese factory.

The large Rodman gun which was cast in Boston last week is with two exceptions the largest piece of ordnance ever made in the United States. Ninety tons of metal were melted in the three furnaces in which the monster was cast. The tube which is to be placed within the bore is about 232 inches long and 12 inches in diameter. It will be received from England at an early day. The diameter at the widest part will be 55 inches, and the casing will be 20 inches for a depth of 232 inches; at the muzzle the external diameter will be 29 inches; the length of the gun will be 263 inches or about 22 feet; it will carry a 700-pound conical ball; the ordinary charge of powder will be 100 pounds, and the weight of the ordnance will be about 40 tons. The special feature of this gun is a brass ring which, when the piece is discharged, expands against the bore of the gun and prevents any injury from the passage of gas. This gun, big as it is, is a toy in comparison with the wrought-iron and cast-steel ordnance which has recently been manufactured abroad. The 81-ton Fraser gun, with which the British engineers have been experimenting at Shoeburyness, takes a charge of 370 pounds of powder and a projectile of 1,700 pounds. The cast-steel breech-loader which Herr Krupp is now making will weigh 80 tons; the weight of the projectile will be 1,050 pounds, and the powder charge will be 300 pounds. The monster Armstrong gun manufactured for the Italian navy weighs 100 tons. The big Krupp gun which was shown at Philadelphia a year ago, and which has recently been purchased by the Russian Government, weighs 56 tons.

The bravest girl in Australia is Grace Vernon Bussell. The steamer Georgette was wrecked off the west coast, near Perth, a small boat had been capsized in the surf and women and children were struggling in the water. On the crest of a precipitous cliff appeared the figure of a young lady on horseback. To the sailors on the stranded vessel it seemed utterly impossible that a horse and its rider should be able to descend that precipice. But the young lady never faltered. She plunged down at full speed, and reaching the shore, spurred her horses into the boiling surf. There were two lines of roaring breakers. With splendid pluck she dashed through them and reached the boat, to which the affrighted women and children were clinging. Her horse stumbled over a hawser which stretched between the wreck and the small boat, but she clung to the saddle and brought the women and children to land. There was still a man left on board the boat. She plunged into the breakers again and brought him safe to the shore. While those whom she had saved were rescuing those who remained on the wreck the heroic girl, drenched with the sea foam and half fainting with fatigue, galloped a dozen miles home to have relief sent to the half-drowned, half-naked folks whom she had left on the beach. Her sister, Mrs. Brockman, took horse, galloped that night through the woods to the shore, taking tea, milk, sugar and flour for the destitute people; and the next day the rescued were brought to Mr. Brockman's house and cared for. The anxiety and excitement proved fatal to Mrs. Brockman, who took a severe cold, and died eventually of brain fever. Grace Vernon Bussell still lives.

The London Times notes with evident satisfaction the cordial treatment of Gen. Grant in this country, prior to his departure for Europe, and especially the ovation accorded him in Philadelphia. The Times observes that ingratitude, the vice most commonly charged against Democracies, cannot be brought home to the people of the United States, and it finds the secret of these demonstrations in Gen. Grant's services to the cause of the Union, of which it speaks as follows:

"Gen. Grant has no longer any political influence in the United States, yet he is treated with more ceremonious homage than would be bestowed upon the most powerful of Cabinet Ministers or even upon the President himself. We need scarcely ask why this is so. The war of secession was a crisis which tried all the powers and wrought most keenly upon the feelings of the American people. Never in the history of the Nation had visible danger come so near all the cherished gains of independence, political progress and material prosperity. The victory of the Confederacy, as the vast majority of the people of the North believed, would have thrown back their country into the second or the third rank among nations. From this peril the victories of the Federal armies delivered the Union, and in the work of deliverance General Grant bore the chief part. Without in the least disparaging the great deeds of Sherman, Sheridan and other Unionist soldiers, it must be admitted that General Grant's victories were indispensable to the success of the Federal policy. While McClellan, Burnside, Pope, Hooker and Meade were being defeated or checkmated upon the Potomac, Grant dealt the first heavy blow at the Confederacy by his capture of Vicksburg. There he pierced the lines of the Confederate Government, which constituted, in fact, a vast intrenched camp. He followed up his victory by repeated blows, and drove in the Confederate armies upon the desolated and discontented interior, cutting them off gradually from access to the Mississippi, and so from the hope of relief. These achievements made Sherman's great enterprise possible, for if Sherman had been obliged to drive the Confederates away from the Mississippi before setting out upon his march to the sea, he would certainly have found the difficulties of his task multiplied tenfold. When General Grant was removed to the Potomac he knew, and the Government at Washington knew, that such speedy and fruitful successes could not be expected as those which he had gained in the West. But Mr. Lincoln had perceived that the war could only be ended by dogged determination, which was the quality Grant's military career most conspicuously disclosed. The policy of 'pegging away,' to use the phrase which General Grant himself has made classical, triumphed, after months of doubt and toil, at Appomattox Court House. There, in appearance, the victory was conceded to General Grant, and to him alone. The historian and the military critic may be able to show that a great part of the credit properly belongs to other men, and General Grant himself is too generous to dispute any claims of this kind; but in the popular judgment the commander who received the surrender of Lee will always be acknowledged as the conqueror of the Confederacy. Nor can we assert that the popular judgment is wrong. The influence of General Grant was the most powerful personal element that entered into the operations of the war. Others carried out his ideas and sustained his efforts; but he may claim credit both for the conception and the spirit which governed the conduct of the war during its latest phase."

A piece of Dr. Strousberg's sharp practice in railroad construction has just come to light in Roumania. One of the railroads follows the bank of the Danube with remarkable closeness, and with so many sinuosities that general astonishment has invariably been caused by a first examination. The reason is that the Roumanian Government paid a certain subsidy per mile, and Strousberg was naturally anxious to make the road as long as possible.

The Pacific coast is coming forward conspicuously in the canning business. It is estimated that in Oregon alone there are 600,000 cases of canned fish and 350,000 of canned fruit put up annually. The business is constantly increasing, and the increase for the present year, it is said, will be 50 per cent. over last year.

A desperado in Harris county, Texas, recently stepped into the dining-room of a hotel and proclaimed that he was as much of a gentleman as anybody at the table. No one disputing the proposition he hauled off on general principles and instantly shot dead J. W. Brown, a promising young physician. This outrage stirred up even the Texans, usually agreeably entertained by such operations, and, much to his surprise, the ruffian was lodged in jail.

Turkey's Public Debt

Washington, June 6 Eugene Schuyler Consul General at Constantinople writes the State Department that the public debt of Turkey amounts to $927 000,000 the annual interest $65,000 000 which is more than one-half the total revenue of the Empire. The last annual budget published of that of March 1876 showed a deficit of $21 000 000 Unless great reforms are speedily introduced into Turkey and care given to the development of its natural resources not even the present amount of taxes can long be raised. There will be an additional deficit each year and as Turkey thenceforth will be precluded from borrowing money outside, the financial ruin of the country seems inevitable

Who Won at Maljat?

London June 6 Perplexing contradictions relative to Ali Saib's operations on the Southern frontier of Montenegro continue to be received. The Vienna Political Correspondenz, usually well informed, publishes a despatch from Cattaro stating that Ali Saib was defeated at Maljat and lost 700 men. A Ragusa telegram supports this view. Ali Saib on the other hand has telegraphed to Constantinople a most circumstantial account of his successes according to which he has occupied the heights commanding Danilograd

AN OVER LOADED BRIDGE.

SIXTY LIVES LOST

Sixty Persons Drowned

London, June 6 Sixty persons were drowned at Bath by a bridge over the Avon river giving way during an agricultural fair to-day

Additional Particulars

A despatch from Bath gives the following additional particulars of the accident. About 10 30 this forenoon on the arrival of a train load of excursionists on the Weymouth branch of the Great Western Railway to attend the agricultural show between 100 and 200 persons belonging mostly to the well-to-do farmer classes rushed upon the toll bridge leading from the railway platform. The bridge was a wooden structure, of light construction narrow, about 30 feet long and between 20 and 10 feet above the River Avon, resting on posts mortised into stone-work at either end and without a centre support. The bridge snapped in the centre and the two ends were wrenched clean from the sides. The whole mass with people was plunged into the middle of the stream which was about seven feet deep. Boats from the shore were immediately at work rescuing the living and searching for the dead

The City Parks By some inadvertency our report of the action of the City Government on Tuesday evening omitted the following which will be of interest to our readers. An order was presented in the Common Council directing the chairman of the Committee on City Property to have the grass cut on the city commons and was passed and sent up for concurrence. On coming up in the Board of Aldermen, the order was laid on the table, the vote standing yeas, Morrison, Thatcher and Thorndike, nays, Bradbury, Pond and Woodbury, the Mayor throwing a casting vote, so the grass is to stand until it ripens, or until its purchasers see fit to cut it, for we are informed it has been sold and the purchaser in one instance has called on the police to drive children out who were at play in one of the parks, lest they trample down his grass. The children in this case have no other place to play unless in the street where they are liable to be run over or to be in the way, and the officers did not feel it to be their duty to drive them out. The query is what are the parks for?

Life Insurance An a matter of interest to all those holding policies we give the following notice from the Boston Journal

From a perusal of the twenty seventh annual report of the Union Mutual Life Insurance Company of Maine presented to the directors by President DeWitt we are convinced of the fact that the policy of the management is such as not only to increase the confidence of those insured in this great institution but to largely augment its business. The key note of Mr DeWitt's management is to deal honestly and above board with the public to be economical in expenditure, prudent in investment frugal in promises prompt in payment, to win confidence by stating facts as they actually are and so managing affairs as to do nothing that one would care to conceal; and to so [illegible] funds as to have ready money when it is wanted. Few companies can excel the record of the Union Mutual Life, and a plainer report was never presented to policy holders than the one we have been reading. The assets of the company have been marked down to hard pan figures, and in referring to this fact, the Insurance Commissioners of Maine and Massachusetts believe that the estimated shrinkage will ultimately recover a very considerable margin

The system of non lapsing policies, under the Maine non forfeiture law, modeled after the law of our own State is one of the special advantages which the Union Mutual now offers, and which will prove highly beneficial to policy holders

Messrs E. S Harrison & Co Gents—The business of the line having increased very much I am obliged to confine myself very closely to office work, and have in consequence been much troubled with constipation. I find in your Lozenges just what I need—not a strong purgative, but an efficient help to nature.

A California paper says that the new and elegant jail at Redwood City "is now open to the public."

Let you be ever so pure, you cannot associate with bad company without falling into bad odor. Evil company is like tobacco smoke—you cannot be long in its presence without carrying away a taint of it.

Better give the baby a rattle. He can get lots of fun out of a revolver, but it is apt to go off and hurt somebody. When you see the baby in the back yard with a revolver, and a porter looking over the fence and whistling, "I hear an angel calling," it is as well to go out and take the weapon away from the infant.

For the first time in the history of China, the government of that Empire has issued a decree which is published in the Pekin Gazette, which not only favors religious toleration, but makes special reference to Christianity, and enjoins upon the provincial governments to favor that line of missionary labor.

A French policeman arrested three prisoners, and not having the handcuffs to secure them, he just cut off their suspender buttons. Their hands were thus occupied, and they couldn't run away, so they were marched safely to prison.

A neat-dressed and modest resident of Cazenovia entered a dry goods store in that village, and thickening to penetrate a secret, stepped up to the dummy on which new patterns of dresses and mantles are displayed, and asked it on the shoulder, "going, going, old woman, how are you?" The old woman at once turned around, and not only answered the question, but volunteered a great deal of information besides.

Lizzie McPherson in San Francisco got there against time. A little child fell in front of a heavy wagon in a crowded street. The driving young woman hurried to the rescue. The wheel was on the point of grazing the child's head, and to save speed to her horses she cut sharply. But her horses were on the run at the way she pulled on the reins. So she had to tangle up a hind foot in front of the wheel, and with her hands held on to the spokes mid the wagon as it stopped. The child was picked up in a hurt, but the cry of it had her consolation, and from pain and excitement combined, fainted away when her deed of bravery was done.

At the Auburn State Prison, New York, some fifteen or twenty years ago, when I was asking in respect to the character of the men there, the warden pointed out a tall man, and said, "I regard him as one of the most devout and spiritually Christian men that I ever knew." I said, "Has he been there for him?" Well, it is so. "What was he sent to for?" Forging, but I never witnessed any brain. He was a man of remarkable mental and he forged for the fun of it, and paid them as they came due. The first, the second, and the third—much the time of the payment of the fourth arrived, and he would have paid that as he had those struck down with a lightning fever. He was delirious when it came due, and he was caught.—Exchange.

Our old Henry Ward Beecher's brother-in-law with his wife and child got in the way of Hardenburg, N. Y., while he is settling on a square mile of land, travels around with horse and saddle bags and preaches regularly on Sundays, while his wife teaches school. The boys with the couple live with a Mr. Beecher himself, who is a delightful fascinator, the share of a pearl, in which trout breed in such great numbers that fifty or sixty often taken from it in an hour. Mr. Beecher is said to be a man of the clearest, and deepest, piercing, but why he chose to go off in the Lord's acre in this way nobody knows.

Dr. Holly has got a new horse, but the old Doctor is not up with a child of his. He reached a gentleman in the back street the other day. "What's the matter?" was the query. "Well," said the gentleman, slowly, "before the election you used to take me aside and tell me how my family was coming on and I've been hunting you all over town to tell you, and that's the way you've treated me. But don't mind, doctor, I voted for the other candidate for mayor."

An extraordinary tragedy recently occurred at Spalato, Dalmatia. A house-holder named Tomich, full of rage against his wife and father, and when the police came to arrest him he barricaded the house and struck down with a musket. He then opened fire upon the citizens, and killed a man and wounded a woman. A sergeant then bravely approached the house and besought Tomich to at least give up to him his child, but the wretch answered the appeal by firing a shot at the officer. Ambassadors were then sent to the house, and succeeded in capturing Tomich, but only by keeping up a brisk fire of stones at the windows, the musket was driven out of sight, when a rush was made and he was captured. Altogether he killed four and wounded five persons.

How to tell a gentleman: You should never judge by appearances. The other day a little woman in calico went to one of the leading hotels, and registered herself as from Texas, took dinner and breakfast, and was off the table.

The Olympian Gods gazed at her scarcely in the moment, and languidly resumed their

Any baggage?" inquired the guest.

No," replied the clerk, "the calico did. Leave a deposit case to enter on pay-ment in advance?"

"Very well," said the guest, without hesitation or appearing offended, "take two fifty-board out of this," and from a small pocket-book he began to count the produce—one hundred dollar note.

"I beg your pardon," stammered the abashed clerk, "but we are often taken in, and your face being unfamiliar to me—"

"No offense," cheerily answered the guest, "business is business and rules are rules. It does look a little odd to be with no baggage, but no cattle makers afraid much to stop, no?—"

"That's all right, colonel," said the clerk. Put up your money, we know a gentleman when we see him. Any slops the gentleman up to 1 o'clock. Call for the best in the house, General."

The old man stayed away an ample breakfast, got the clerk to give him small bills for a fifty, and asked where Billy Coolhaugh, the banker, had his office, before the clerk when the hotel dinner, desired the clerk to tell Mr. Farwell, if he called, that he would be back at 2 o'clock, then went, and hasn't been seen since. The clerk subsequently discovered that the $50 bill was bad. The sad event has cast a gloom over the hotel office.—Chicago Times.

SWORN STATEMENT

OF A

BOSTON DRUGGIST.

Gentlemen,—I hereby certify that I have had Catarrh for ten years, and for the last six years have been a terrible sufferer. I was rendered partially deaf, had buzzing in the head, pains across the temple, dizzy spells, weak and painful eyes, awful hawking and spitting, and a hard and constant cough, severe pain across the chest, so I every half minute of consumption. My head seemed all the time to be in a constant commotion, as if my brain would burst through the top of my head and I could not keep them cool. Frequent at night I would spring out of bed, it seemed to me, at the point of suffocation. I tried different doctors and took everything in my power to dislodge the miseries from my throat and but I believe being in the sleeping car. For a period of six months I was unable to sleep more than two hours at a time, and I could not lie down at all. I could hardly swallow. I finally consulted an eminent surgeon in regard to an operation on them, to cut it's roots up beyond the palate—but examination and information by my physician caused me to decide against such an operation, and knowing of Dr. Sanford's Radical Cure for Catarrh, After using the first bottle I began to improve rapidly under the first dose I began to realize my head no longer not known it in the former years. It seemed gradually disappear. It stopped running down the throat, and the coughing ceased entirely. The hawking and spitting, the disagreeable taste in the mouth, the offensive smell, and the dizziness all left me entirely. I have taken seven bottles of the Radical Cure, and I feel like a new man.
